SYNOPSIS EUPHORIA BY IVAN VYRYPAEV

Pavel can't hold back anymore. He decides to confront Vera with the truth. He tells her that he can't live anymore without looking at her the way he first did at a recent wedding. She confesses that she looked at him, too, and she doesn't know why. Something unexpected happened, something they have never known before, something they cannot comprehend ... Vera lives with her husband, Valery, and their little daughter, Masha, in a remote dilapidated village in the wide open steppes near the banks of the River Don. But she seizes an opportunity to run off with Pavel when Valery turns violent. The jealous husband follows the new couple, intent on destroying their passion.

DIRECTOR'S COMMENTS

EUPHORIA /// Euphoria is “an indescribable feeling of excitement and increased perception” – that’s the definition I found in a psychology reference book ... In the film, two people who are not spiritually developed, are given the gift of feeling the spiritual power of holy love. But they are not ready for it.

UNEXPECTED LOVE /// EUPHORIA is the story of an unexpected love, genuine and merciless, almost brutal. Since they have never been taught to love and to be loved, they cannot cope with the euphoria that has seized them. It’s a story about people who act like children, people who live like recluses in the wild nature of the steppes. They are just tiny figures against the imposing steppe landscape, both beautiful and troubling. The majestic River Don is the silent witness of their passions.

LANDSCAPE IS A MAIN CHARACTER /// Shooting took place in the Don steppes, 200 kilometers from Volgograd (previously Stalingrad). We shot in very rough conditions, with temperatures rising up to 46 degrees Celsius. But we knew what to expect, since the place is absolutely divine and it suited best the main concept of the film, in which one of the main characters is landscape.

NOT ONLY ABOUT RUSSIANS /// The characters were based on the local population. Their manner of speech and behavior is typical for these places. But this film is not only about Russians. It’s not necessary to know the customs of Russia to understand the themes explored in the film. The same as in Shakespeare’s Hamlet – the action takes place in Denmark, but it is not necessary to know Denmark with all its peculiarities and features to understand the play.

ACCORDION PLAYER AIDAR GAINULLIN /// The music for the movie was written by famous Russian accordion player Aidar Gainullin. He’s only 25 years old, but he has performed all over the world for the past 15 years. He continues to study under maestro Mstislav Rostropovitch. EUPHORIA was his debut as a film composer. In my opinion, it was a very professional debut.

TRAGEDY /// The term tragedy has lost its genuine meaning today. Tragedy in art is only possible in a society with a developed culture and a happy and successful mental situation. This situation doesn’t exist in Russia, and even less so in Europe and America.

FILM AND THEATER /// I have directed theater and now, having created this film, I can surely confirm that the principles of audience interaction are the same in films and in the theatre. A play and a movie – are both an organization of audience attention and the development of emotional impressions. The film doesn’t take place on screen, it takes place in the viewer. And the hardest part for me was that I had experience in the theatre. I didn’t know before, but in film, the director cannot know until the last moment if the images influence the viewer or not.
